CONSTRUCTION WORK ON LIBRARY WINGS NEARS COMPLETION

Dedication Ceremony Will Take Place Saturday June 16.

CAPACITY TREBLED BY NEW ADDITIONS

Old Portions of Building To Be Altered Very Little.

The Abernethy and Starr wings, recent additions to the Egbert Starr Memorial library will be dedicated Saturday afternoon, June 16, as a part of the college commencement program, according to a recent announcement by President Paul D. Moody, and Miss Laila A. McNeil, librarian.

All exterior work on the new additions is completed and practically all of the interior finish is now in place. The additions to the library provide greatly needed rooms for library reference work and for seminar purposes and have been built at a cost which exceeds $100,000.

The Abernethy wing of the library forms the eastern portion of the building and was built to house the collection willed to the college by the late Dr. Julian Abernethy, a graduate and former trustee of the college. This library is particularly valuable as it is largely composed of American first editions. The collection of the work of Thoreau is regarded as one of the most complete in the country.

The basement of the Abernethy wing of the library will be divided into seminar rooms and others for housing the Sheldon coin collection and the Middleburiana which has already been collected and which will greatly be enlarged. The main floor of the wing will house the collection willed to the college while the gallery surrounding the upper portion of this room will be used for general library purposes. The interior finish of this wing is to be of mahogany. The collection will be in charge of Miss Gertrude Robson, formerly of Boston, who will act as curator. Miss Rob-

DEBATING TEAM DEFEATS COLBY

Middlebury Awarded 2-1 Decision By The Judges.

The Middlebury Debating Team defeated Molby by a 2 to 1 decision Tuesday evening in the Mead Memorial Chapel on the subject Resolved: "The United States should cease to protect by armed force capital invested in foreign lands except after a formal declaration of war."

The Middlebury team supporting the affirmative side of the question was made up of George Hinman, '28, A. D. Leahy, '28, and Sam Pattee '29. Millet, Lord and Levine represented Colby.

The main points of the affirmative side were: "The policy of armed intervention is contrary to the best interests of the people. Intervention by arms is infringing on the sovereignty of foreign nations. Intervention is contrary to the will of the People." As an alternative for intervention Middlebury suggested that arbitration be substituted for war in case of controversies.

The main arguments of Colby in upholding the negative side were: "Capi-

PLANS FOR JUNIOR WEEK ACTIVITIES NEARLY COMPLETED

Program Begins With Taping of Waubanakees Before U. V. M. Contest.

HENDERSON'S MUSIC TO PLAY AT PROM

Freshman - Sophomore and Varsity Contests Will Be Features.

The Junior Week Committee has nearly completed its arrangements for the coming program. Festivities begin on the afternoon of May tenth with the tapping of the Waubanakee papooses before the Vermont baseball game. After the game the Junior tea will be held in the McCullough Gymnasium. In the evening the Men's Glee Club will give a concert. Friday begins the annual inter-fraternity stunts contest in which the best talent of the college funnymen is expected to compete. There will also be a baseball game with Norwich and a tennis tournament with Boston University. The evening will witness the greatest event of all, the Junior Prom at the Middlebury Inn. The Junior Prom Committee has been exceedingly fortunate in securing the services of Charles E. Henderson.

Mr. Henderson is considered one of the finest pianists in the country and is a noted composer. He has been a member for three years of the famous Gold Coast Orchestra of Harvard and has been the leader of that organization for the past year. While touring the country with the Gold Coast Orchestra and the Harvard Banjo Club he played in such places as Washington, Pinehurst, Philadelphia, Louisville, Indianapolis, Milwaukee, Chicago, Buffalo, Syracuse, Cincinnatti, St. Louis, Nashville and many smaller cities.

Mr. Henderson is bringing with him an eight-piece orchestra made up of the best talent to be found in New England. He has given the Junior Week Committee his personal guarantee that the 1929 Junior Prom will be the best ever.

The Soph-Frosh rope pull is scheduled for Staurday morning. A tennis tournament with Norwich and a track meet with R. P. I. will fill up the rest of the day. An inter-fraternity sing and the Junior Play, "Square Crooks" are on the evening program. "Square Crooks" with an all star cast under the direction of Dr. Burrage is now in rehearsal and promises a smooth production.

Vespers will be held as usual Sunday afternoon and in the evening an inter-sorority sing on the steps of Pearsons Hall will end up the week.

The Junior Week Committee is doing its best to put across the finest Junior week ever, but is helpless without the whole hearted cooperation of the student body. It has secured an exceptionally fine orchestra for the Prom and the backing of undergraduates is all that is now needed to make it an unparalleled success.

ORGAN RECITAL AT VESPERS

Gordon W. Stearns of Waterbury, Conn. gave an organ recital at Mead Chapel Sunday, April 15. The program included: "Theme and Variations", Lemaigre; "Roulade", Bingham; "Largo" from the "New World" Symphony, Dvorak; Handel's Suite from "Water Music; "Urchin Whistling in the Street" Nevin; "An Indian Love Call", Friml; "Tiptoe March", Goodrich; Reynolds' Preludes on Hymn Tunes, "Mercy", and "Integer"; "Toccata in D Minor", Bach.

The varied program, together with the pleasing interpretations which Mr. Stearns gave, was very highly appreciated by the student body.

A STARVING BABOON

The Blue Baboon no longer belies its name. The cage keepers are losing heart. Where formerly gathered large crowds of interested onlookers, all anxious to feed the animal now are found only a few passersby who stop only long enough to comment on the Baboon's thinness and to ask the keeper why he isn't fed better.

They do not realize that the health of the animal is dependent upon their own contributions as well as the care of the keeper. The chief keeper works far into the night gathering what little food he can find, which, with what very little he receives from other sources is barely enough to keep the animal alive.

The successor to the present keeper will soon take charge of the cage. Whether or not he will try to sustain life in his charge after the final exhibition of the year depends largely on the promise of support received from those who have not served but only waited—to criticize.

The Baboon plays a definite role in the group of Middlebury's undergraduate publications and in the past has played it well. If it is to continue in this respect it must have active support from the undergraduates and alumni, both financial and editorial, but no paper can ask financial support unless it has something worth reading, and if it has something worth reading the financial part will take care of itself. For the last year or two the keepers of the cage have had to do more than their share of the work of feeding the Baboon and although it may take fewer muscles to laugh than to frown, it uses up more brain cells to write a joke than it does a tragedy. The Baboon is hungry. Let's help the new keeper keep him fat.

JOE COLLEGE.

Too much introspection is doubtless injurious to one's peace of mind and the extravert is probably happier than the introvert. Nevertheless, most students would profit by an intelligently conducted inventory of their mental processes.

Freshmen are often guilty of advertising their sophostication and it was to remedy this that hazing was invented by some Greek pedagogue back in the days of Rome. But it is not the Freshmen who are the greatest offenders—they are outspoken if nothing else and the mood generally wears off by Junior Week; it is rather the upperclassman who takes on a sort of pseudo dignity and becomes extremely bored with everyone and everything, all of which must be as uncomfortable to the owner as it is unbearable to the observer.

Distinction must be made between the naturally taciturn student and the one who fails to speak from choice rather than from habit. Introspection will help to determine not only the effect of your own attitude on others but to interpret correctly the attitude of the other fellow. The chances are that the person who seems to be aloof thinks that everyone else is at fault. By looking at yourself through the other person's mind you may be surprised to find that you are not as democratic as you would like to be.

The class of '31 should be congratulated for being the first class which has not reenacted the second battle of the Marne with Starr and Painter Halls as chief sufferers.

Judging by hearsay alone all the examinations must come the last day except those that come in groups of five all for the same person.

COMMUNICATION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE CAMPUS:

"Art is long and life is short" and one can't know everything. But two can know a good deal more than one and this is the assumption upon which we base our suggestion that steps be taken at Middlebury College for the organization of a liberal Student Forum.

Despite much evidence to the contrary, it is our sincere belief that there are many students in college who are more interested in getting an education than in getting a degree. It is of course impossible for such students to take all the courses which they might like to take while in college. Of necessity they must neglect whole fields of knowledge while doing intensive work in a few. There are many phases of Science, of Sociology, of History, of Economics, of Literature, of Religion, of Philosophy, and other departments of learning which the average student never even becomes aware of and which no man who is seeking after the truth can afford to neglect.

Every year the college goes to great trouble and expense in bringing vocational lecturers and authorities on science and art to Middlebury but we neglect to avail ourselves of the opportunities of becoming better acquainted with the intellectual currents among our own faculty members and thinking students. We have heard several professors state that they cannot always discuss important issues freely in class and students themselves often feel constrained to limit their probings. Where there is no free commerce of ideas, there is evasion of vital problems and consequently mental stagnation. We feel sure that the faculty and the administration will gladly cooperate with any movement which will help students to become not mere thesauria of information but thinking individuals in search for the "good life."

The plan is simply to form a self-sustaining and self-regulating organization to foster the presentation of informal talks by faculty members, students and others, to arrange for round table discussion and open debates on important problems, both current and constant, and in general to act as the prodding iron to the intellectual life of the community. College life is rich in variegated experience but this, we believe, will make it even more so.

Clubs such as the Alchemists club, the English club, the Economics club, etc., are doing excellent work in their own fields, but as a general rule they are for selected and non-cooperating groups. They aid in specialization rather than in broadening and they lack the possibilities for reorientation inherent in a liberal, open forum.

As now suggested the Forum would conduct, at stated intervals, informal, open meetings. The membership would be composed of both students and faculty members who cared to join, for as Dr. Martin reminds us in his book, "The Meaning of a Liberal Education," "No one is fit to be a teacher in whose mental process education has ceased to go on. One is a student first and only incidentally a teacher. The best teacher is the seeker after truth among his students."

The idea in itself is not new. Both Williams College and the University of Wisconsin have famous student forums as have other educational institutions, and the Liberal Clubs of Harvard and Yale are not dissimilar. We believe there is room for the free play of ideas at Middlebury.

Though it is rather late for such a plan to make much headway this school year, we feel that the organization of this body should take place as soon as possible in order that the Forum may begin fulfilling its functions immediately upon the opening of school next fall.

We appeal to those who are interested in such a movement, to come forward with constructive suggestion in the CAMPUS.

(Signed)
ARTHUR LAWSON,
HAROLD BERGMAN,

"Such a Charming Young Man" by Zoe Akins, the first of the three one-act plays given at the Playhouse last Thursday evening, is a light comedy laid in a downtown restaurant. Gerald, the charming young man, unknowingly undergoes a trial by his financee Margaret. It has been Gerald's custom to be always gallant to women, never serious, and forever on a "wild goose chase;" he is never on time for anything, not even for an engagement with his financee. Margaret, who is being courted by another man, has finally decided to put an end to this trying situation and gives Gerald one last chance to be attentive, serious, and prompt. Gerald, as usual, is late and gives an incongruous story as an excuse. He is to raise $25,000 before his marriage and expresses the hope that his recent purchase of a gold mine will bring him the required sum, although when asked he cannot even tell the location of the mine.

The people in his alibi finally do prove to be real; one of them, a "wonderful looking woman," is sitting at the next table. The gold mine is a bona fide one and the $25,000 earned; Gerald shows Margaret the check and is freely forgiven.

The part of Gerald is a long one, and difficult for a first appearance. Mr. Hardy did well, although he did not realize the full possibilities of the role. Miss Cady, the financee, was perfectly at ease, as were Miss Sanford and Mr. Brooks, her companions; all three of them gave their usual good preformances. Miss McDermott was excellent as the "wonderful looking" but "tough" acting woman. Mr. Wilson and Mr. Hunt did their parts well, as did Mr. Landon the Waiter.

This production, which was directed by Zella Cole '28 and Eloise White '29, was outstanding because of its finish, and gave evidence of much time well spent.

"Cooks and Cardinals" by Norman C. Lindau is an amusing episode in the Cardinal's kitchen. The heretofore undisputed Queen of the kitchen, Mrs. Connelly, is faced with a shocking and most impertinent request to allow the French chef of a visiting Italian cardinal to enter her sanctuary, there to prepare some special delicacies for the foreign guest. This intrusion proves too much for Mrs. Connelly's nerves, especially when the invader is so daring as to remove his coat in her presence. The situation finally becomes unbearable when the "furiner" with a proprietory air begins moving her untensils from their accustomed places.

In the ensuing struggle the chef is rather forcibly ejected and even with the intervention of the cardinal himself, is not allowed to reenter. The problem is at last solved by Kathleen, the assistant cook, who is only to glad to work with the chef, hoping that she will then be in a position to ask for a dispensation in order to marry her Protestant lover. Mrs. Connelly is asked to leave for the day and peace is renewed.

All the actors kept step with the lively comedy; Miss Cruikshank played the part of Mrs. Connelly to perfection, Miss Lewis was charming as Kathleen, and Mr. Bergman most convincing as the cardinal. Both Mr. Howard and Mr. Deedman did good acting and were at their ease in the French language. Mr. Lynch was amusing as the young lover.

The play as a whole was extremely entertaining and well produced. P. A. Xanthopoulo '28 and Wallace Kelley '29 directed the performance. Mr. Lawson is certainly to be congratulated on his set.

Middlebury To Play Intercollegiate Golf

Tuesday evening the men's Athletic Council decided to have a trial golf team for this year. The decision to try a team was brought about as the result of a request by Norwich University for a tournament this spring. The council expects to arrange a triangle meet with Norwich and Vermont. Henry Weston '29 was appointed as temporary manager. Mr. Weston has been golf champion at Middlebury for the past two years and is captain of the Outing Club. He is a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity.

TRACKMEN BUSY IN EVERYDAY TRIALS

Weight, Dash and Hurdle Events Held This Week.

Track tryouts for the past week have been greatly retarded because of inclement weather. The poor condition of the track has tended to slow down time and the broad jump trials were postponed because of of the bad condition of the pit. Regardless of the adverse conditions against which the tracksters have been working there has been a marked improvement shown. Guarnaccia and Schmidt are still the leaders in the weight events. Captain Arnold and Thayer are showing up well in the distances. Bagley '30 has not been able to enter the trials during the past week.

The summary for the events held since vacation is as follows: the first four men are given in each event in the order that they came in. Mile run; Captain Arnold, Thayer, Donald, Witt. BASEBALLERS HAVE PRACTICE CONTESTS

Coach Klevenow Makes Final Cut, Reducing Squad To 20 Men.

With the opening of school after the Easter recess and the conditions of Porter Field being better, Coach Klevenow has put his Baseball squad through their first outdoor practice. Due to poor weather only a few days were available to do any outdoor work, but these few days were used to the utmost. The squad has been cut to 20 men and Klevenow has them rounding into shape. No team has been chosen as yet, but as the first game is to be played on April 27, Klevenow hopes to be able to pick his combination soon.

With two men battling for every position, informal games were held on those days that were good enough for the squad to get outdoors. Coach Klevenow hopes to get in more of these practice games during the coming week. At present Willis and Douglas are battling for the backstop job, Collins and Casey are alternating at first, Jacobs and Kelley at second, Livingston and Sorenson at short-stop and Anderson and Franzoni at third. March, Gollnick, Humeston and Hasseltine are fighting it out for the outfield berths. The pitchers are Whittemore, Hingston, Bossert, Simmons, Cook and McDonald.

Construction Work Nears Completion

son is now in Burlington where she is arranging the Abernethy collection for transportation to Middlebury.

The Starr wing of the library will be used for general library purposes and will contain several seminar rooms as well as one for the use of typewriters. The additions more than treble the capacity of the library and make possible a much extended service.

During the Easter recess the doors from the main library to the new additions have been completed and a new linoleum floor laid in this portion of the building.

Many alterations in the stack room of the older portion of the library have been made, as the new additions will provide additional space for the storage of reserve books as well as for the files of magazines, papers and periodicals. The main reading room will be left practically as it is at the present time.

While it is expected that the greater part of the construction work will be completed within a few weeks, it is not likely that the new additions will be in extensive use during the present school year, according to Miss McNeil.

WOMEN'S M CLUB FORMED

Five women whose prominence in athletics has enabled them to win sweaters formed what is to be known as the Women's M. Club some time before the Easter vacation. These women are: Emily Lobdell '28, president; Rose Marchiano '29, secretary and treasurer; Sigrid Manty '29, Gertrude Parsons '28, Marjorie Sibley '29, and Mary Tudhope '29. Since the founding of the club a sweater has been presented to Irene Avery '29 which entitles her to membership in the group.

The Women's M Club has a dual purpose: it is of a social nature, but at the same time it desires to stimulate in the women's college an interest in athletics which may lead to the awarding of more sweaters each year.

TENNIS SEASON TO OPEN SOON

Twelve Matches on Schedule; Two Each With Vermont and Norwich.

The schedule for the college tennis team for the spring season has been completed and includes twelve matches. The season will open May 2, when the team will play Clark University at Worcester, Mass. The squad has become increasingly active with the coming of good weather. Daily workouts in the gym have been supplemented by cross-country runs ranging from one-half to two miles. In a few weeks this, together with practice on the courts, should put the squad in the best of condition.

Prospects for a successful season look more than good with several veterans of last year's varsity back. Capt. Hindes, Young, and Henderson are the nucleus around which the team will be built.. Vermont was beaten last fall by a team composed of Hindes, Young, Smith, Thayer and Henderson. All these men will be available with the exception of Thayer who left college in February. Tryouts for the team will be held next week under the direction of Coach Adams and Capt. Hindes. Candidates for the varsity include C. P. Young, Henderson, Hill, Sun, Johnson, Smith, Daland, Huntington, and Woodbury.

Last year's varsity won nine out of thirteen matches. With this good record to uphold, it is well that the squad is undergoing a strenuous course of training.

The tennis courts have been in poor shape due to the spring rains, but will be available for use this week.

It is of interest to note that more home matches have been scheduled for this season than ever before.

Arbitration is unsatisfactory in such cases and seldom succeeds in quieting all factions. America hase never intervened where there was a stable government and her armed intervention was never used to establish political dominance. Intervention is used only to establish peaceful conditions and is often the only practical ways of doing so."

AN ADDITION TO CAMEL SMOKE-LORE

WE SUBMIT the sad case of the freshman in zoology, who, when asked to describe a camel, said, "A camel is what you wish you were smoking while you try to think of the right answers." He flunked zoology—but he knew his cigarettes. For in time of trial or time of joy, there's no friend like Camels.

The subtle influences of choice tobaccos upon the smoke-spots of mankind have been carefully studied, identified, and blended smoothly into Camels —the finest of cigarettes. And we'll bet an alkaflitch on this: Camels have just the taste and aroma to pack your smoke-spot with the "fill-fullment" every experienced smoker seeks. Got an alkaflitch you want to lose?
